

The Islands and Unions Network Centre of Canadian Studies, University of Edinburgh

Canada as a Union

4 December 2018, 10.00 – 17.00

Centre on Constitutional Change, University of Edinburgh, St John's Land, Edinburgh

The Islands and Unions Network is organising a series of seminars on the theme of political, social and economic unions in the past, present and future. At this meeting, Canadian scholars will make presentations on aspects of Canada as a union.

The discussion will be led by local scholars, linking the Canadian experience into the broader, comparative issues we have been discussing in other contexts.

Robin Boadway (Queen's University), Economic Union
Discussant, David Bell (University of Stirling)

Antonia Maioni (McGill University), Social Union
Discussant, Nicola McEwen (University of Edinburgh)

Lori Thorlakson (University of Alberta), Political Competition and Union
Discussant Ailsa Henderson (University of Edinburgh)

Jean-Denis Garon (UQAM), Fiscal and Spending Union
Discussant David Heald (University of Glasgow)

Jocelyn Létourneau (Laval University), Historical Understandings of Canada
Discussant Alvin Jackson (University of Edinburgh)

Vincent Pouilot (Institute for Responsible Government) A Federal Model? Federalism through Parliament in accordance with the Constitution Act, 1867

Please note the date. Further details will follow in due course. Any enquiries should be emailed to:
Centre.Constitutional.Change@ed.ac.uk

The meeting is supported by the Economic and Social Research Council.